SUMMARY

I am a hard-working student majoring in graphic design at George Fox University. I am passionate about building relationships, deepening friendships, and finding ways to collaborate with others. I have benefitted from a diverse educational background (homeschool, private school, and public school), which taught me to be flexible and to adapt to whatever situation I find myself in. I have learned not to hold back out of fear, but to jump right in, try my best, and immerse myself in what others are doing. It brings me joy to think of ways to support a mission or cause.
